over a period of over forty years geoffrey leech has made notable contributions to the field of literary stylistics using the interplay between linguistic form and literary function as a key to the mystery of how a text comes to be invested with artistic potential in this book seven earlier papers and articles read previously only by a restricted audience have been brought together with four new chapters the whole volume showing a continuity of approach across a period when all too often literary and linguistic studies have appeared to drift further apart leech sets the concept of foregrounding also known as defamiliarization at the heart of the interplay between form and interpretation through practical and insightful examination of how poems plays and prose works produce special meaning he counteracts the flight from the text that has characterized thinking about language and literature in the last thirty years when the response of the reader rather than the characteristics and meaning potential of the text itself have been given undue prominence the book provides an enlightening analysis of well known as well as less well known texts of great writers of the past including keats shelley samuel johnson shaw dylan thomas and virginia woolf first published in 1992 acts of literature compiled in close association with derrida brings together for the first time a number of derrida s writings on literary texts on the question of literature the essays discuss literary figures such as rousseau mallarme joyce shakespeare and kafka comprising pieces spanning derrida s career the collection includes a substantial new interview with him on questions of literature deconstruction politics feminism and history derek attridge provides an introductory essay on deconstruction and the question of literature and offers suggestions for further reading these essays examine the place and function of literature in western culture they highlight derrida s interest in literature as a significant cultural institution and as a peculiarly challenging form of writing with inescapable consequences for our thinking about philosophy politics and ethics this book should be of interest to undergraduates and academics in the field of literary theory and criticism and continental philosophy in the value of literature rafe mcgregor employs a unique approach the combination of philosophical work on value theory and critical work on the relationship between form and content to present a new argument for and defence of literary humanism he argues that literature has value for art for culture and for humanity in short that it matters unlike most contemporary defenders of literary value the author s strategy does not involve arguing that literature is good as a means to one of the various ends that matter to human beings it is not that literature necessarily makes us cleverer more sensitive more virtuous more creative or just generally better people nor is it true that there is a necessary relation between literature and edification clarification cultural critique catharsis or therapy rather than offer an argument that forges a tenuous link between literature and truth or literature and virtue or literature and the sacred this book analyses the non derivative sui generic value characteristic of literature and demonstrates why that matters as an end in itself
